Air Rifle Shooting At Barton Crofts

Overview

Air rifle shooting is a safe and enjoyable activity, however the use of air rifles fall under the fire arms act and has to be conducted in a safe and controlled fashion.

Essential to the safe use of the weapons is the ability to hold, load and operate them correctly with this in mind the activity may not be suitable for some, particularly Beavers and younger cubs.

People taking part in the activity must be able to unaided:

- Hold the weapon correctly.
- Load and cock the weapon.
- Demonstrate appropriate maturity to shoot safely.

This is at the discretion of the Range Officer and appointed Range stewards who will assess participants ability to carry out the above.

Leaders/Adults in attendance should refrain from entering the firing area without the permission of the Range Officer/Stewards.

Range Officers are trained to NSBRA accreditation.

Location

At Barton crofts we adopt a varying range system where each range is assessed and set up according to the camp layout.

Each range is clearly marked out with controls in place to manage access and ensure effective range discipline.

Equipment

The air rifles are .177 calibre designed for target shooting. Personal weapons cannot be brought on site. Air rifles with .22 calibre are not permitted.

Targets are placed in purpose built target holders to reduce ricochet/ rebound of pellets.

Most range set ups will incorporate tables and seats to act as the firing line with range perimeters clearly marked.

Activity Content

Participants firstly undergo a safety briefing followed by instruction in the use of the weapons including:

- How to prepare the weapon for shooting
- How to hold the weapon
- How to aim and shoot
- How to make the weapon safe and leave the weapon after shooting
- How to score

Individual help and guidance may be given as required by the Range Officer/Range Stewards.

Participants who are unable to follow simple instruction or control their actions will, unfortunately, be asked to leave the range.

Please note: All parental permission forms must be completed before participation. Obtaining these is the responsibility of the activity organiser not the Range Officer.
